

TRAVEL TEAM NEWSLETTER - APRIL 2012

As I mentioned last month the economic climate appears to be taking its toll on the longer trips, the travel team are looking to revise some of the more "local" one day trips that have been run in the past to places that many people have not had the chance to go to. As we plan these trips they will appear on the web site and in next month's newsletter

JBS

May 2012

Cathedral of the Salvador and Santa Maria

Convent of Santo Domingo

Episcopal Palace

Cultural Arts: Day trip to Orihuela

The recent reopening of the Fundacion Pedrera museum is an opportunity to view some of the finest Spanish painting from the 19th century, including works by Sorolla. You may also wish to take the opportunity to visit the Colegio de Santo Domingo, the Cathedral, and the Episcopal Palace which houses an exhibition of religious art - the old town of the city was declared an Historical Artistic Site in 1969 and it shelters a multitude of monuments. Take a picnic or have a leisurely lunch sitting outside in one of the picturesque plazas!

The cost for the coach is €10 - please see Angela on the Cultural Arts desk for further details.

October 2012

Day trip to the Ayora Honey Festival

Date and time t.b.a. by Joni Hills and Jan Davies

29th November 2012

IKEA trip PLUS shopping centre where Primark is €12 for Christmas shopping

PLANNING FOR 2013

January 2013

Valencia A planned repeat of the last successful trip to Valencia is proposed with the same choice of itineraries:
Trip A is simply to Valencia by coach for a day's shopping, sightseeing, whatever you want to do, price 5€.
Trip B is to the Bioparc (Google it!!) in Valencia. This is a totally new concept in zoos, where the animal species are together in a compound instead of in separate cages, which gives a safari-type experience.

February 2013

Gandia Palace tour, a separate tour of the town, plus time for shopping organised by Gwen

June 2013

Malta A possible one week trip to Malta including organised morning trips to see the various places of interest with afternoons free - more information to follow
